Research Interests

I study the anthropology of childhood from cultural and biocultural perspectives. In particular, my research investigates 1) how culture motivates and orients cooperation in childcare and socialization, and 2) impacts variation in health and well-being. My research involves fieldwork among foragers and subsistence farmers in the tropical forests of Central African Republic and Congo-Brazzaville.

Specific topics: egalitarianism and child health, play, teaching, fathering, socialization of autonomy and sharing, parental risk perception, inter-ethnic interaction

Education

2013 Ph.D. Anthropology Washington State University

Dissertation: Social Learning During Middle Childhood Among Aka Foragers and Ngandu Farmers of the Central African Republic

2006 M.A. Anthropology Washington State University

Thesis: Parental Investment and Men's Sexual Behavior: Life history Theory and Reproductive Strategies in a Sample of American Men.

2002 B.A. Psychobiology University of California, Santa Cruz, CA

Employment History

Current	Senior Researcher	Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology	Leipzig, Germany
2015-2019	Lecturing Fellow	Duke University	Durham, NC, USA
2014	Research Analyst	Oregon Health Authority	Portland, OR, USA
2013	Instructor	Washington State University	Vancouver, WA, USA

ADAM HOWELL BOYETTE, Ph.D.

2011	Visiting Instructor	University of Hawassa	Hawassa, Ethiopia
2009-2013	Teaching Assistant	Washington State University	Vancouver, WA, USA
2007-2008	IGERT Fellow	Washington State University	Pullman/Seattle, WA, USA
